Identifying and Preventing Catheter-Associated Urinary Tract Infections (CAUTI)

1 CE Contact Hour Available

Catheter-associated urinary tract infections are one of the most common healthcare associated infections. For individuals with Dx such as spina bifida, MS, or cerebral palsy, CAUTIs can also present unique challenges. In this session, we explore best practices for identifying and preventing CAUTIs and their impact on some vulnerable populations.

Presented by Kelly Sparks, RN, BSN, CWOCN with Capital Nursing Education

9am-10am Pacific Time (10-11am MT | 11-12pm CT | 12-1pm ET)

Ostomy Care Challenges: Obesity, Hernias, Skin Issues and More

1 CE Contact Hour Available

From intra- and post-operative care to daily management, an individual's body shape, weight and skin integrity can create additional challenges for many patients and their healthcare team. This session will identify solutions for moist skin, skin folds, pouching over irregular skin contours when managing obesity or hernias, and more.

Presented by Joy Hooper, RN, BSN, CWOCN, OMS, WCC with the Wound Care Education Institute

9am-10am Pacific Time (10-11am MT | 11-12pm CT | 12-1pm ET)

Screening Strategies to Reduce Fall Risk

1 CE Contact Hour Available

For medically complex and/or older adults, falling can lead to far more serious consequences, including long-term hospitalization, disability or death. Yet with adequate screening and preparation, many falls are preventable. In this training, we explore screening and assessment techniques to help reduce fall risk.

Presented by Kelly Sparks, RN, BSN, CWOCN with Capital Nursing Education

9am-10am Pacific Time (10-11am MT | 11-12pm CT | 12-1pm ET)

Wet-to-Dry: Substandard of Care

1 CE Contact Hour Available

Numerous studies and guidelines have deemed wet-to-dry gauze dressings as a substandard practice, yet this is still one of the most frequently ordered wound care treatments in the U.S. This session will cover indications and contraindications of wet-to-dry dressings and offer effective alternatives for wound treatment.

Presented by Dr. Don Wollheim, MD, FAPWCA, WCC, DWC, Clinical Instructor with the Wound Care Education Institute

9am-10am Pacific Time (10-11am MT | 11-12pm CT | 12-1pm ET)

Incontinence-Associated Dermatitis (IAD): Assessment, Prevention and Management

1 CE Contact Hour Available

Incontinence-associated dermatitis (IAD) is a common skin injury resulting from exposure of skin to urine and stool. It is often found among seniors and less mobile individuals whose incontinence is managed with absorbent products. In this session, we cover the how, when and why of IAD, as well as solutions for recovery and prevention.
